How To train your island

Hiccup opened his eyes. The first thing he saw as the trees winding their way. He turned his head after a minute of struggling to breath he turned his head to see a dog. Hiccup struggled to his feet. He ran into the forest after several minutes of flat out running. He arrived on a beach it was tranquil and paradise until he heard the screams. At which point he turned his head to see the plane its burning and broken fuselage in ruins people asking for help and examining each other's wounds. The wind ripped at his blazer.

He turned to see a boy walking by a turbine. He looked up at the sound a large creaking to see a wing. Hiccup heard a boy shouting help. He saw the boy trapped under a piece of landing gear. He shouted to two other boys to help him out. They lifted the landing gear as he pulled the boy. The boy had a deep laceration about half way down his thigh; it was bleeding quite heavily Hiccup removed his tie and wrapped it around the wound. He was tying it when he heard a girl scream for help. For some reason in his mind this took precedence, "Get him away from the engines" He screamed over the nearby turbine.

He dashed across the beach. He got to the girl; she had a deep cut in her head. "Are you ok" He asked "Do I look it?" she retorted "good point" he replied. He looked at the wound it wasn't too deep he reached in his pocket he pulled out a handkerchief " its unused just keep pressure-" He was cut off with the explosion of one of the engines. Shrapnel was launched into the air. He threw himself of the girl in an attempt to protect her from the falling missiles of shrapnel. After a few seconds he got off her. He looked at her "you're going to be fine just don't move so the wound doesn't open up" He told her while looking at the girl who was receiving C.P.R.

"You" He shouted pointing at a nearby boy who was wandering aimlessly "get her away from the fumes if the blood becomes a deeper red shout me. Hiccup ran over to the women "What's your name the buy shouted" the boy shouted to Hiccup "Hiccup he shouted back.

"Stop!" Hiccup commanded "her heads not tilted back far enough your blowing air into her stomach" He stated tilting her head backwards "are you sure?" He asked as hiccup began giving her CPR "That's exactly was I was doing I'm a lifeguard I'm licensed" He said "Yeah well you should seriously consider handing that license back" Hiccup retorted "maybe we should do one of those hole things you know stick a pen in their throat" the boy asked in an attempt to be helpful "Yeah you go find me a pen" Hiccup replied to get rid of him. Moments later the women spluttered back to life "Take deep breaths take deep-" He was silenced by the creaking of the wing , he looked up the wind as teetering on the edge of being snapped off.

Hiccup started running towards them shouting "move move move get her up get her out of here the wing" they narrowly made it before the wing fell exploding on impact "You ok?" He asked the girl "stay with her" He told the guy "hey I'm not going anywhere" he replied.

Hiccup walked through the wreckage he took a moment to catch his breath when a boy came up to him holding an array of pens " I didn't know which would work best" the boy explained "Its fine " hiccup said before he walked off
